

More nudity and profanity on the public airwaves is the last thing our society and culture should be viewing. What is going on in Washington, DC? I worked there in government for a short while with well meaning public servants, but now it seems that it has been taken over by IRS violators of U.S. Constitution and now apparently FCC officials who didn't outgrow their teens. I do not watch much television myself, but as a parent I already struggled during past years to protect my child from ridiculous TV programming. Now the FCC wants to make that job even tougher for parents? Note to all of you at the FCC: Grow up and become responsible adults!
